AWAKENED BY STRANGER'S KISS

Romantic Prowler Strays Into a Young Lady's Boudoir.

THOUGHT SHE WAS HIS MOTHER.

His Intoxicated Condition is the Defense He Makes for His Singular Conduct—Made Many Apologies Which Were Accepted.

It is a rare compliment for a man to think a girl resembles his mother, but not always so pleasant when the mistake goes so far as to include a kiss which awakens her in the dead of night. More especially is this the case when the kissing is under the influence of the cheering cup. At least, so Miss Mary Carson, of No. 1200 Ashland street, will testify. She thought Jack the Kisser had got loose in Richmond Thursday night. The Carsons live a short distance from Marshall reservoir at the corner of Ashland and Reservoir streets.

HEARD A SINGING.

On Thursday evening Mr. Carson's family went to see the fireworks. Mr. Carson and his pretty young daughter, Miss Mary, were very weary and retired to their rooms at once on their return. Mrs. Carson remained in the sitting room with a young lady, who is visiting the family.

At about a quarter of 10 o'clock they heard some one open the front door and walk up the stairs to the second floor, but paid no attention to the entrance, supposing it was a member of the family. A few minutes later a scream was heard from above, and a young man came tearing down the stairs and rushed out of the door and up Ashland street at breakneck speed. He fell once or twice, but was up and going in a second or two. Mr. Carson came to the door, but had to stop there because his disheveled costume might have caused some one to think he was a ghost from Hollywood, just across the street.

ONE SWEET KISS.

Investigation was made at once into the cause of the trouble. Miss Mary Carson said that she had been awakened by a sound sleep by some one who thought he was a ghost from Hollywood, just across the street.

CALLS AND APOLOGIZES.

Early Friday morning Mrs. Carson had a caller whom she at once recognized as Jack the Kisser. He said he had come to see if the family would accept his most abject apologies for his conduct the night before, which he ascribed to intoxication. He had been to Mr. Carson's house earlier in the evening looking for some one but found he was at the wrong address. The place he was hunting was another "house where the cars turn the corner."

He said he had no recollection of coming back to Mr. Carson's house or of anything else until Miss Carson's screams partly sobered him. Then he realized he had done something wrong and scolded.

THOUGHT SHE WAS HIS MOTHER.

Jack said he always went to his mother's room and kissed her good night and he supposed in the confused state of his mind he wandered to Mr. Carson's and kissed the first lady he ran across.

The apology was accepted and Mrs. Carson said yesterday that he seemed so mortified at his conduct that she didn't ask his name.

She says he was about five feet nine inches high, slender, had dark hair and eyes, wore a dark coat and vest, light pants and a black derby and a polka-dot tie, and on Friday did not wear the jag he had on the night before.

FIGHT IN FULTON.

Two Young Men Use Revolvers Without Serious Results.

The peace of last Sunday in Fulton was broken by a pistol duel between two well-known young men. Fortunately, there were no serious results, the marksmanship of the young men not being of the Buffalo Bill order.

The battle given by the ladies of Fulton for charitable purposes, proved a great success, both financially and socially. A considerable amount was realized. All portions of the city were well represented. Mr. James Lumsden, acting as floor manager and his excellent work was greatly appreciated by the committee. Those present were, among the ladies, Misses Maggie Throckmorton, Mamie and Annie McLaughlin, Mamie Goggin, Ada, Bessie and Eula Miller, Annie Sullivan, Lela Green, Lena Caghill, Vicki Shoberger, Katie Mae, Rosie Duffy, Addie Harden, Miss Rafferty, Mrs. Shadd and Mrs. Goggin. Among the gentlemen were Messrs. James Lumsden, Willie Byron, Stanley Ford, James Hagan, Mayes Roane, Richard Morris, Chas. Fraser, Leslie Parkman, Edgar Hobson, Rufus Hobson, Chas. Manning, Willie Hill, Lonnie Shuffelt, Herman Deppoe, John Ryan, Willie Richardson, Willie Roach, Walter Kirsh, Charlie Mosley and others.

Rev. Cabell Henning, the eloquent pastor of Fulton Baptist church, has returned to his home after a visit to Berryville, Clarke county, Va., where he has been holding a revival. Mr. Henning met with great success in his meeting at Berryville, having many converts. While there Mr. Henning visited the grave of John Estlin Cooke, the American novelist, among whose works is included "The Last of the Foresters." The novelist was buried at the old Colonial Chapel, three miles from Berryville. The chapel is owned by the Episcopalians of the vicinity and services are held by them in the building once a year, so as to retain their ownership of the property.

Mr. Henning also visited the spring house in which George Washington camped when he surveyed this portion of the country for Lord Fairfax in 1733. The reverend gentleman reports the place to be a great curiosity, it being built of solid walnut logs and notwithstanding its age, is yet in an excellent state of preservation.

Mr. Henning will fill his pulpit to-day at both the morning and night services. His subject for the morning discourse is "Who is Righteous," and for the evening service "A Spider Web Trust."

Miss Annie Carlton, who has been the guest of Rev. Cabell Henning and wife, left to visit her aunt in Stevensville, Va., from which place she will return to her home in Arkansas.

Councilman Fred H. Garber is suffering from a severe cold, which has necessitated his absence from his place of business for the last few days.

Mrs. Rosa Pease, who has been visiting her sister, Miss Mary Garber, on Nicholson street, left for her home in Berkeley, Va., yesterday morning.

Mr. Milton Leonard, has returned to his home on Louisiana street after an extended trip through the northern portion of the United States.

Mrs. Oliver, of Norfolk, is visiting Mr. Isaac Wood and daughter at 211 Nicholson street.

Mr. Willie Throckmorton and wife, former residents of Fulton, have left the country, where they have been spending the summer and at present are residing at 205 Fulton street.

Mrs. H. B. Talbot after a prolonged visit through the southern and western portions of Virginia, is now visiting Mrs. C. E. Mosby, of 222 Nicholson street. Mr. Talbot is well known in Fulton and has many friends in this portion of the city.

The numerous friends of Mr. C. H. Smith are glad to learn that his little daughter, Miss Ida May, who has been quite ill, is now much improved.

Mr. H. E. Lindsey, one of Fulton's most prominent young men, was married in Washington to Miss Lela Wilkinson, the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Wilkinson, of Church Hill.

Mr. Allen McCabe, one of Fulton's popular young business men, has gone on an extended visit through the northern portion of Virginia.

Mr. Fletcher Lindsey, who met with an accident at Millhiser's bag factory is much improved.

Miss Shubrick in Peril.

An accident was very narrowly averted at the launching of the Shubrick. The carriage in which were seated Miss Carrie Shubrick, her maid of honor, and her aunt, became blockaded at Seventeenth and dock, and the driver could find no way to get through to the scene of the launching—the ladies were becoming very much excited when a gentleman of the Reception Committee to Mr. McKinley, happened to pass by and seeing the trouble of the ladies, jumped from his carriage into theirs and by dint of great effort reached the stand just as the Shubrick was about to leave her ways.

Miss Grinnam's Funeral.

The funeral of Miss Elizabeth Coates Grinnam, who died at the Old Dominion Hospital Friday night, will take place at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon from Laburnum, the residence of her uncle, Mr. Joseph Bryan, and the interment will be made in Hollywood.

Miss Grinnam was the eldest daughter of Dr. Andrew Glassell and Georgia Bryan Grinnam.

WHO IS THE HEAD OF THE FAMILY?

Knotty Question Propounded for Learned Judges.

WIFE CLAIMS RIGHT TO TITLE.

of Situation Grows Out of a Petition in Bankruptcy Filed in United States Courts Here.

"Can a married woman, whose husband is living and who contributes in any way toward the support of her and his family, be considered, under the laws of this State, as the head of the family and on that plea take advantage of the Homestead Exemption Law?"

Since the new Bankruptcy Law went into effect, this is one of the most novel questions that has been taken to court for an opinion and is in all probability the only one of its kind. No court in Virginia at least, has been asked to pass upon it in any event. But this is one of the matters that is on the calendar for the next term of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, when it convenes in Richmond next term.

The question in point arose out of a petition in bankruptcy which is known as No. 21. J. L. Richardson and Marion H. Richardson, his wife, of Plum Point, claimed as exempt by Marston H. Richardson, her husband, from the sale of their property under the Homestead Law, she declaring herself to be the head of the family and that the business was being conducted by J. L. Richardson, her husband, as her agent, and not as the proprietor himself. An order of adjudication was entered, referring the case to Mr. C. P. Cardwell, Referee for District No. 5, Eastern Virginia.

Mr. Cardwell investigated the matter and considered the exemption claim, which was made. He carefully examined all authorities but found no precedent, in application to the matter. He, however, in an exhaustive opinion, stated that the claim could not be allowed.

MR. CARDWELL'S OPINION.

In his opinion, Mr. Cardwell, after discussing the various phases of the affair, says:

"Says Anderson, J., in Calhoun vs. Williams, supra, 'The whole theory and policy of the Homestead is founded upon the principle that there is natural and moral obligation on the head of the family to provide for the support of his wife and children and other persons dependent on him toward whom he stands in loco parentis which is, if not paramount, equal to his obligations to pay his debts. Whether it is sound in moral, is not the question. It is evidently the ground upon which the law was made a constitutional provision as I think the debates in the convention which framed it will show.'"

By the language of the learned Judge, it is meant that the constitutional provision intended to aid the husband to discharge the natural and moral obligation resting upon him as the head of the family to provide for the support of his wife, and children or other persons dependent upon him and upon this ground the constitutional provision rests. While he lives this natural and moral obligation rests upon him, and not upon his wife, and therefore by no possible construction that I can see the case now under consideration can the petitioner claim and have set apart to her out of her property surrendered in bankruptcy, a homestead exemption; for while she is a married woman the duty of providing for the family of which she is but a member and not the head, devolves upon her husband, as the householder and the head of the family, and he is the one through whom the provision for the family is made by the homestead exemption which the constitution intended to secure to them.

 "I am of the opinion that the contention of the petitioner in this case is untenable and should not be sustained."

THE CASE APEALED.

The petitioner's attorney, however, appealed from Referee Cardwell's decision and carried it to the United States District Court. Judge Waddell, sustained Mr. Cardwell and adopted the latter's opinion.

Mr. Cardwell was also appealed from and now the question will be considered by the higher court.

Miss Slater's Wedding.

Much interest is evinced in the wedding of Miss Ethel Hill Slater, the pretty and attractive daughter of Mr. Wm. Leonard Slater, to Mr. Raymond Hudson Pison, one of the most popular and handsome young men in the city. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride, 14 north Laurel street, on next Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. It will be a tableau wedding, the bride will be attended by her sister, Miss Kate M. Slater, as maid of honor, Miss Margaret Pison, sister of the groom, will draw the curtains. A wedding breakfast will be given after the ceremony. The young couple will leave on the noon train for an extended trip to Washington, Philadelphia and New York. After their return they will be at home to their friends at 14 north Laurel street.

Found His Voice.

To the surprise and delight of his former parishioners and friends in this city, Rev. Dr. C. R. Hines was able to pronounce the benediction at St. Paul's Episcopal church of Petersburg last Sunday. Dr. Hines has been unable to use his voice for the last four years; since the spring he has been under the guidance of Mr. Frank Stayton Thompson, who feels sure his vocal powers will be permanently restored.

Among the Catholics.

The Right Reverend Bishop Van De Vyver has returned to the city.

Mrs. Shawler and Mrs. Head, Latrobe, Pa., have been visiting one of the Sisters of St. Mary's Beneficent Institute.

The orphans of St. Joseph's academy have returned from their beautiful summer home, "Hollybrook" where they have spent the past season.

The members of St. Mary's Beneficent and Social Union will go to Holy Communion in a body on Sunday, November 13th.

The Holy Name Society will meet at the Sacred Heart church to-night at 8 o'clock.

Rev. Father Carey, who has been paying a visit to Rev. H. J. McKeefry, left for his home at Wilmington, Del., last Tuesday.

Will Entertain Her Class.

Miss Margaret Jones will entertain the scholars of her Sunday-school class to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock. This will be a matter of both pleasure and regret, as it will be the farewell of Miss Jones to her class before her marriage on the 9th. Those to enjoy her hospitality will be Misses Louise Crutchfield, Patty Williamson, Ethel Finney, Alma and Hazel Delane, Hallie Fore, Violet Preston, and Annie Sydney.

Her Delusion.

"Mrs. Letterby has the appearance of a woman whose liver is badly out of order."

"It is; but she doesn't call it that."

"What does she call it?"

"Gout."

Her Crowning Glory.

Now comes the maiden down the aisle, Upon her face behold a winsome smile, Full of glee;

For she knows her new fall attire Will raise the other maiden's bale, And she'll be envied for awhile, Don't you see.
